

XM Satelite radio - and all satelite broadcasters - must be allowed to compete. The radio frequency broadcasters have no special rights that would exclude Satelite broadcasters from competing with them. They will have to step up and compete with whoever is out there or perish. They will perish if they cannot improve their product - so be it. It is not the governments responsibility to protect them. It may be Darwinian, but the strongest will prosper and the weakest will become extinct unless they compete.

Richard Feist